Arranger's note

茉莉花 (Mo Li Hua), or Jasmine Flower, is a popular folk song from the Jiangnan region in China and it dates back to the 18th century.

This arrangement is specially written for emerging children's choir or treble voice to introduce them to the different elements in part-singing. Singers are expected to do word-painting.

This song explores some ideas in the following sections:
Section A: Unison singing
Section B: Call and answer and modulations
Section C: Counterpoint and I-V cadence in the alto parts

Pronunciation and translation
